EDINBURGH TO GLASGOW RELAY

MIZUNO RACING CLUB won Scotland's inter-city relay for the eleventh year in a row after a dramatic battle with Hunters Bog Trotters which had fans of the historic race enthralled throughout the 45-mile contest, Fraser Clyne reports.

There are some people within Scottish athletics who want to see this event wiped from the fixture list because of the widely acknowledged difficulties of safely policing an eight stage competition which follows increasingly busy roads across the centre of the country.

The race survives, however, because of the determination of club runners to protect the rich tradition of a contest which was first held in 1930 and has now reached its 63rd edition. The "E to G" has been known for producing more than its fair share of drama, and this year's event was no different.

Mizuno Racing Club have dominated the contest since lifting the coveted News of the World Trophy for the first time in 1991. But never before have the champions been pushed so close. No club had ever come within one minute of Mizuno in the past, but from very early on it was apparent that the outcome might be somewhat closer on this occasion. And so it proved.

Hunters Bog Trotters and Mizuno played nip and tuck throughout, leaving the other 18 invited teams to scrap amongst themselves in a scramble for third place.

John Ross gave the champions a one-second advantage over HBT's Al Hart on the opening stage as the big guns set their stall out. Steve Cairns then propelled the Trotters into a 36-second lead over Mizuno's Ken Chapman on stage two. The gap was closed again on the next leg when Tom Hanlon overhauled David Wright to put Racing Club back in front by six seconds. The pendulum swung slightly back in HBT's favour on the fourth stint thanks to John Heap's record setting performance which put the challengers two seconds in front of Mizuno's Max Colligan.

Another stage record fell on leg five as Ian Harkness stretched the Trotters lead to 10 seconds over Mizuno's David Gardiner before Glen Stewart got in on the act by restoring Racing Club's lead - but only by one second after an enthralling no-holds barred battle with Phil Mowbray.

It was still all to play for and the excitement was growing, but the Trotters must have thought they were heading for gold when Don Naylor swept past Stuart Campbell on the seventh stage and opened up the biggest lead either side had enjoyed at any stage in the contest so far - 92 seconds.

Hill running specialist Hayden Lorimer was entrusted with HBT's final stage through the streets of Glasgow. The tension grew as Mizuno's Davie Ross, seeking a 10th winner's medal, gradually chipped away at his rival's lead. With just a little more than 600 metres remaining, Ross finally caught Lorimer and, showing no mercy, the Racing Club man accelerated away to clinch victory by 15 seconds. It was the third narrowest winning margin in the history of the race.

More than seven minutes passed before Mark Graham appeared to secure third place for Shettleston Harriers, whose record of eleven victories has now been matched by Mizuno.

The special prize reserved for the most meritorious performance outside the top three teams went to Metro Aberdeen who achieved their highest ever position. The North-east men had failed to qualify last year after having finished 20th in 1999, but came through to take fifth.

Fife AC endured a two-minute penalty for unintentionally cutting the course on leg seven.

REEBOK BRIGHTON 10km

TREVOR JAMES led home the field but, with entries closed at 1500, there were many disappointed runners who were turned away, Martin Duff reports.

In one of his last races in this country before returning to South Africa, perhaps for good, James took the race by the scruff of the neck after a pedestrian early start and gradually pulled clear. Increasing his advantage throughout the race the 27-year-old finally crossed the line 200 metres clear.

Passing the 3km mark in 8:57, James was already 60 metres clear of Barns Green Half-marathon winner Darrell Smith. Birchfield's Dave Miles followed but there was a gap to a crowd of Brighton-based runners, which included Tracy Harris, Tom Naylor and Mike Buss. James kept up the pressure to go through 5km in 14:50 and a sub 30-minute time looked on the cards. However, lack of any challenge and a slight breeze held the South Africa back to his 30:08 finishing time.

James said: "I thought I'd take it out and see if anyone comes." They didn't, so his front running paid off handsomely and, having learnt from bitter experience to enter early, was able to take home the winner's prize. Of his decision to return to South Africa, the winner said: "My visa runs out in six months, but I am going home shortly and may not come back."

Smith, in his best race for several years, held on well for second in 30:50. However, there was a tight squeeze for third place, which went to former triathlete Harris after it had so long seemed to be heading to Miles.

Joanne Hinde was the official winner of the women's race but the presence of former AAA 10-mile champion Lynn Williams took the shine from her victory. Williams, who was not wearing a number, crossed the line first, despite the pleas of marshals to pull up.

The two went through 3km together in 10:28, with Melissa Neal a little off the pace as Miranda Heathcote and Ellen Chadwick trailed. By 5km, reached in just under 18 minutes, Williams had gone ahead, but Hinde said: "I thought she was in the race, we were together until just before half-way."

Hinde pressed on to take her first major race - for her a breakthrough in athletics, but the Hastings runner is another to emerge from the long line of triathletes making an impact on the running scene. "I was eighth in the European Under-23 event in Turkey recently," said the 21-year-old. Neal kept up the pressure behind for a close second in 37:32.
